Turn Learning into Earning at LPU

At Lovely Professional University, education goes beyond classrooms and textbooks. Students are empowered with real-world exposure that helps them build industry-ready skills, gain practical experience, and create meaningful career opportunities even before they graduate.

Through live projects, internships, industry collaborations, startup support, freelancing opportunities, hackathons, research initiatives, and experiential learning, LPU encourages students to apply their knowledge in real business environments. This hands-on approach enables them to build strong portfolios, work with clients, and earn while they learn.

From developing innovative solutions for companies to launching entrepreneurial ventures and securing paid internships, LPU students graduate with more than just a degree—they leave with confidence, professional experience, and a competitive edge in the job market.

With the right guidance, exposure, and opportunities, many students are able to earn enough during their academic journey to recover a significant part, or even the full cost, of their education before completing their degree.

At LPU, the focus is not just on preparing students for jobs but on preparing them for successful careers. Because when learning is backed by industry exposure and practical experience, success naturally follows.

From an LPU Classroom Idea to a Multi-University Movement

Innovation at Lovely Professional University continues to create real-world impact, and Macbease is a shining example of what student entrepreneurship can achieve. What began as a simple idea on the LPU campus has evolved into a fast-growing student-led platform that is transforming campus life across India.

Created by LPU students, Macbease helps students discover opportunities, connect with like-minded peers, explore communities, participate in events, and build meaningful networks within their universities. Designed to make campus life more engaging and accessible, the platform bridges the gap between students and the countless opportunities available around them.

Today, Macbease has expanded far beyond its origins, reaching 68 universities and connecting more than 30,000 students. Its remarkable growth reflects the power of innovation, collaboration, and the entrepreneurial mindset nurtured at LPU.

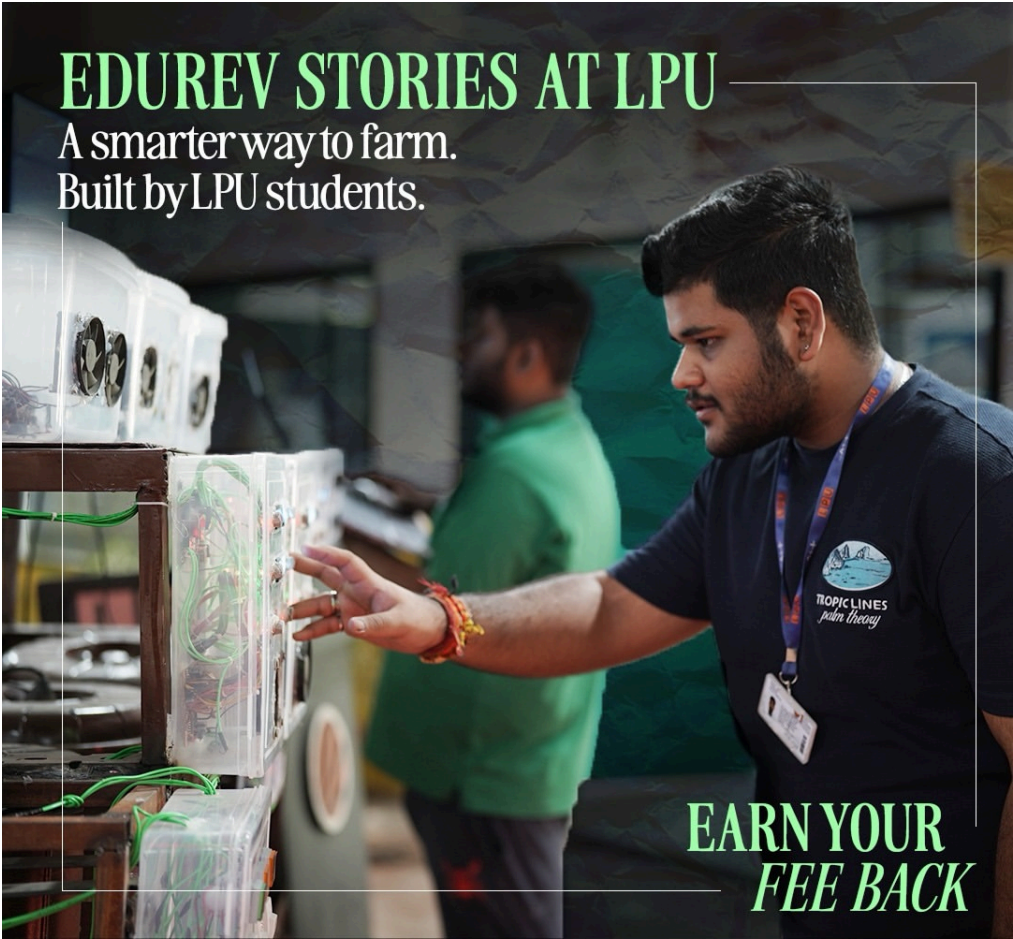

Education Revolution: A Vision Becoming a National Movement

The ET Education Summit 2026 brought together some of the brightest minds in education to discuss the future of learning, innovation, and nation-building. Among the key ideas that resonated throughout the summit was the vision of an "Education Revolution"—a call to fundamentally rethink how education prepares learners for a rapidly changing world. The concept was first articulated during the Republic Day 2025 celebrations at the Lovely Professional University campus, where it challenged educators, institutions, and policymakers to move beyond conventional models of teaching and embrace a more student-centric, future-ready approach. Since then, the idea has gained remarkable momentum, evolving from a thought-provoking vision into a broader movement shaping conversations across the education sector.

From a Classroom Idea to a Smart Farming Innovation

At Lovely Professional University, innovation begins in the classroom and grows into solutions that address real-world challenges. Demonstrating this spirit of creativity and entrepreneurship, LPU ECE VLSI & Design students Mukut Roy and Pawan Rathore of Team Ankur have developed an automated mushroom cultivation system that combines smart automation, IoT, and intelligent design. The project is designed to simplify mushroom farming by automating key environmental conditions such as temperature, humidity, and monitoring. By reducing manual intervention and improving precision, the system helps enhance productivity, minimise resource wastage, and promote sustainable agricultural practices. More than just an academic project, the innovation reflects how students at LPU are encouraged to transform ideas into impactful technologies with real-world applications.

From Classroom Idea to Campus Startup

At Lovely Professional University, entrepreneurship begins long before graduation. B.Tech. CSE students Tushar Vashist and Vansh Khanduja turned their vision into reality by launching BokkiTokki while still pursuing their degrees. What started as a simple idea has grown into a student-run, self-sustained venture that is now expanding beyond the LPU campus. Their journey reflects the university's innovation-driven ecosystem, where students are encouraged to transform ideas into real businesses through mentorship, practical exposure, and entrepreneurial support. At LPU, students don't just learn about entrepreneurship—they build, test, and scale their ideas in the real world, creating meaningful impact even before they graduate.
